The information in this directory is designed to promote continuity in family planning services for migrant families in mid-continent streams. It provides professional personnel with a new tool to help meet the distinctive needs of individual migrants. Names, addresses, schedules, methods, and fee information of service agencies (health departments, medical clinics, planned parenthood centers, etc.) are arranged alphabetically by state and by city within each state. Plans are underway to periodically update the directory, and space has been allotted for inclusion of update information. (JH)

FOREWORD

Down near the source of the mid-continent migrant streams in Austin, Texas is a compassionate human being. Alan Bloebaum has long been concerned for the families of agricultural migrant workers, which trek across the country harvesting the nation's crops. He recognized that among their many hardships they lacked adequate and useful information about family planning services that should be available to them on their journeys – services that would enable them to control with dignity the future expansion of their families.

Filling this void in their lives became his vision, a vision shared by Mrs. Hattie Louise Browning and Mrs. Julienne S. Meyers. It was their combined dedicated efforts that translated the vision into potential reality when, in December 1967, the development of this directory began.

Mrs. Mary Mae Hartley assisted him in designing the questionnaires and identifying the agencies to which they would be sent. Special consultant to the project was Robert Browning. Miss Gwen Mapes assisted me in compiling information for the directory and in corresponding with the agencies. In addition, all of the staff of the Southwest Region office gave excited attention to the development of the directory.

However, Alan Bloebaum's deep feelings were continuously demonstrated by the vigilant watch he kept, by the careful criticisms he made, by the enthusiastic response he gave at each critical point as the final editing progressed. And now the realization of his vision is left for those of you who are in direct contact with migrant families. As you refer them to sources of sound family planning, you will enable them to improve the family stability and dignity that all citizens deserve.

To paraphrase Socrates, American society will never reach a noble state, until the uninjured become as indignant about injury as the injured.

Sue Randall

Usage Plan

Proper use of this directory can make successful the first step in a long needed program. To simplify usage, the directory is arranged alphabetically by state and by city within each state.

Some addresses may appear inadequate; however, most centers can be located easily by inquiring upon arrival in a community. Also, since operating schedules are subject to change in order to meet public demands, persons referred to a center should be informed of the possibility of such changes and encouraged to seek current information locally.

When directing a migrant to the geographical location of a family planning service, place in his hand a card that lists the name, address, schedule and available telephone numbers of the agency.

The function of this directory is to provide continuous service to the migrant family. Properly utilized, its purpose will be accomplished.

Introduction

The information in this directory is designed to acquaint migrant families in mid-continent streams with family planning services that are available to them as they travel across the nation. This program attempts to fill a void which has effected a problem of long standing. The program is designed to promote continuity in family planning by identifying sources of assistance that are available to migrants. It provides professional personnel with a new tool to help meet the distinctive needs of individual migrants.

Selection of the centers was determined by sending questionnaires to relevant county, state and regional agencies. Every county was surveyed where at least 100 migrants of mid-continent streams were in transit during the peak seasons. By this means, current data were gathered and compiled about services available in thirty-four states.

Two points are vital to the effective implementation of the program. The first is systematic use of the directory according to the usage plan. To attain fully its purpose the directory should be used as outlined in this plan. Second, the directory needs to be updated periodically. Plans are already underway to obtain the update information, and space has been allotted in the directory for its inclusion.

This directory is another first in family planning. Hopefully, it will add a much needed component to the family stability of the migrant who seeks to improve his family's well-being.
